SIMONA IAMMARINO

Work address: London School of Economics and Political Science
Department of Geography and Environment
Houghton Street
London WC2A 2AE
United Kingdom

Simona Iammarino is Professor of Economic Geography at the Department of Geography & Environment of the London School of Economics and Political Science. She was Head of Department (01/01/2014 – 31/08/2017), and she is academic governor in the LSE Council and Court of Governors (2016-2019). Since 1st of September 2016 she has been affiliate faculty member at the Gran Sasso Science Institute (GSSI) – Social Science, L’Aquila, Italy. She was elected Fellow of the Academy of Social Sciences in 2017.

Simona’s main research interests lie in the following broad areas: Multinational corporations, location and innovation strategies, and local impacts; Geography of innovation and technological change; Regional and local economic development and policy.

She was co-editor of Regional Studies (2008-2013), and she is currently member of the Regional Studies Association (RSA) Publication Committee and of the RSA Research Committee. Simona has published more than 50 articles in major peer-reviewed journals, around 30 book chapters, and numerous working papers, policy reports and other publications. She co-authored two books widely cited in the literature: Multinational Corporations and European Regional Systems of Innovation (with J.A. Cantwell, 2003), and Multinationals and Economic Geography. Location, Technology, and Innovation (with P. McCann, 2013). Simona has a long-term experience, both as Principal Investigator and as Senior Researcher, in externally funded international research projects, and in consultancy projects for various international organisations (e.g. EU Commission, OECD, United Nations) and government agencies.
